

4.6.6: Task: Finding Images

Google allows you to filter image results by the type of license.

1. Go to https://images.google.com/?gws_rd=ssl to search for an image.
2. Search for an image.
3. Find the Tools link and click it. It will open up a new menu bar of filtering choices.

4. Choose Usage rights. It will give you two options.

What do each of the options mean?

Solution Code

- 1 | Creative Commons licenses: These images are usually free to use, but require credit.
- 2 | They may also have limitations on how, or in what context, you can use them.
- 3 | For example, an image's license might state that you can't modify it or use it
- 4 | for commercial purposes.
- 5 |
- 6 | Commercial or other licenses: These images have non-Creative Commons

7 | licenses and can be from either free sites or commercial sites that
8 | require payment.
